

Killingsworth Pest Control uses the most up-to-date technology available.

Honesty Matters Most to

What matters most to Killingsworth Pest Control is doing the right thing for customers and employees. The company's mission statement expresses it best:

"We conduct business with integrity, honesty, care and quality for our customers and our employees."

Integrity has always been the guiding principle at the company since Sterlyn and Thelma Killingsworth founded it in 1969. Sterlyn began the company after a stint in civil service.

Today Killingsworth is owned by Sterlyn & Thelma's son, Greg and his wife, Lisa. Located in Ft. Walton Beach, Florida, technicians from Killingsworth take care of the pest control needs of residents in the counties of Okaloosa, Santa Rosa and Walton, Florida. Because of the company's long history in the area, Killingsworth's technicians really know about pest and lawn problems in their market area and are prepared to solve those problems in the most efficient way possible.

"While other homes have had termite trouble in our area, Killingsworth has provided the professional service on our house that gives my wife and me peace of mind. We highly recommend Killingsworth to anyone looking for professional pest control at a fair price," explains Ron & Kay Clark of the Emerald Coast Creamery, Inc. a Killingsworth customer.

Complete Menu of Services Offered

Killingsworth technicians focus on protecting what's most important to their customers - protecting homes, families and the environment. The company provides complete pest control services including termite treatments, lawn care and general pest control and offers various treatment programs to meet the needs of their customers. Not only does the company take care of residential pest problems, but also solves pest problems in commercial establishments.

Honesty and conviction are very important at Killingsworth.

Termite treatments include preconstruction soil treatments, termite monitoring and baiting. Lawn & ornamental care involves insect control, pre/post-emergent weed control, lawn fertilization, fungus control. General pest control includes quarterly and annual service for roaches, ants, fleas, ticks, silverfish, earwigs, rats, mice and other pests.

Services are guaranteed in that after 30 days, if the customer still has insect problems, the technician will return at no extra charge.

Quality Employees Make it Work

Another ingredient to the company's success is its employee staff of 18. It's very important to the owners of the company that new employees are well trained and confident when the employees provide service. "Our training goes far beyond technical training for our employees. We provide structured customer service training to not only our technicians, but to our office personnel as well. We want our customers to be able to contact someone on the first call who will be able to answer their questions or refer them to another employee who can," explains Lisa Killingsworth. "Our technicians undergo 3 months of intensive training and our office personnel experience 3 weeks of training sessions before they contact customers. Our training goes far beyond what's required."

Protecting the Environment

Another hallmark of Killingsworth's business is taking care of the environment. "We don't treat unless we absolutely have to and when we treat, we use the most responsible products and methods available." Killingsworth Pest Control has always stayed up-to-date on the latest technology available in the pest control industry by belonging to state and national pest control associations. The company has always been open-minded when it comes to technology.

Honesty, the Best Policy

"My parents founded the company on Christian integrity and we continue that culture today," adds Greg Killingsworth. "Sometimes, it's difficult to tell the customer bad news about an insect problem, but we know that, even though it may be uncomfortable for us, telling the truth up front is the right thing to do."

The right thing to do...that's the secret to the success of Killingsworth Pest Control over the years.
